HONGKONG, NOVEMBER 4TH, 1880.

In view of the treaty just concluded between China and Brazil, some letters by the special correspondent of The Times from the latter country are important and interesting. In the second of these epistles, dated from Rio Jameiro, this correspondent treats more" especially on the composition of the population of the great South American Empires and the labour question there. With regard sion of European civilisation in the East. to the first; he estimates the population at twelve millions, of whom four millions are set affection for European institutions. The comdown as Caucasians, or whites, two infilious as Africans, or negroes, 400,000 as tame American Indians, four millions of mixed blood. mulattoes or mestizo, and the remainder wild Indian tribes. This population is, however, distributed over a vast area, and only a small proportion of it can be induced to engagein field labour. The slaves, who are being gradually emancipated, number- 1,119,168, and it is stated that by the end of the present century slavery will be extinct. The planters believe that the negroes will for the most part desert the plantations as soon as they gain their liberty, for it is a well known fact that the vast majority of those who have been freed flock to the cities and look for work there. The Portuguese, who immigrate into Brazilin large numbers, are also disinclined for manual labour, and there are at least thirteen out of the twenty provinces under Dom Peduo'srule the climate of which is unsuitable for white men to labour in In the southern provinces some very successful German colonies have been planted, and a good number of English and French settlers are doing well. But

been sorely disappointed, finding the country to which they were taken unsuitable and the climate too hot. Brazil, moreover. cannot compete successfully for the stream of Caucasian emigration on account of its distance from Europe, and the fact that there are so many new countries better adapted for Europeans as a place of residence. Brazil is blessed, The Times correspondent says, with an amount of agricultural and mining wealth almost inexhaustible; and is must be evident that the present or future well-being of the country resolves itself into a mere question of labour. That labour is to be obtainable from China, and the Brazilian Government has acted wisely in negotiating a treaty with the Government of Peking. We hope that after its ratification the Chinese Authorities will not interpose any frivolous objections to the emigration, as has been the case with other countries. They need not fear for the equitable 'treatment of the Chinese in Brazil. The country is li herally governed, under a most humanoindenlightened mourch, and there are not the race prejudices in Brazil that exist more or less in all the Spanish republics of South America. The correspondent of The Times, however, is not in favour of Chinese being imported to Brazil. He says:-" Weary of looking for labour to the nations of Europe, Brazil is now laying her hopes on Asia; and a deputation has for some time been in China to see on what plan a migration of labourers could be organized in that Empire to people the waste lands of this. But, alas! commissions from other American States to the same country and on the same errand have long been at mitted work; and, large as may be the supply, the Chinese hivean never yield its bees in num bers adequate to the demand. John Chinaman, besides, independently of some peculiarities of manners and morals which have made him obnoxious, is apt to have a predilection for city life and sedentary employment. He is wilful and trickey; resentful and treacherous upon provocation; and, when hard driven, he sets little value on other people's life or his own." &The writer is considerably at fault here, it will be remarked. The Brazilian Embassy has completed its work in Peking, and if the Chinese Government will only permit the emigration the supply of a sedentary life in many cases, but then it emigrants in old times who were drafted off to Peru and Cuba were the scum of large culture, whilst many hated labour of any kind. What Brazil requires is a portion of the surplus hands in the agricultural districts | cook, who heard him too. I said, "Only that I A missionary just returned from a took so of China, and we see no reason why she should not get them. There are plenty of really industrious Chinese agriculturiets who would gladly go abroad to better their condition. That they would improve it by going to Brazil there can be little doubt, as the Government of that country are prepared to act liberally by them. The Times correspondent speaks of the Chinese, we imagine, only from his experience of them in Peru and other South American countries, and, as we have stated above, little more than the refuse of Kwangthe old coolieships. LOSS OF THE SIAMESE SHIP "CANTON!

The steamship Esmeralda, Captain Talbot, from Holbow on the let inst. arrived here yesterday, bringing nine of the crew of the Siamese ship Canton, which had been wrecked in the South during the recent bad weather, . The Canton left here on the 14th ult. bound for Bangkok, and it may be presumed she was lost on her way to that port. Few particulars are known, as those saved are mostly Siamese, but they state that 36 lives were lost, including the captain' and mate. The mon saved describe the weather as very bad, a succession of violent squalls dismasting the ship, which was soon on her beam onds, in a terrific sea and blinding rain; that the sea broke clean over her many times, and she went down ultimately head first, survivors state that they saved themselves by getting on one of the ship's tanks, after swimming about for some time supported by spars, hatches, and whatever they could lay hold upon. They were without food for several days, but eventually got on shore at a place called Aylum, and walked to Haiphong, whence they were forwarded to this port. The Centon was a vess of 779 tons, chartered by Chinese, and manded by Captain Knudsen,

On the 4th August the news reached Zanzibar of the death of Captain Carter and Mr. Caden-lead, which threw a gloom over the whole resient European community, with whom Carter was a great favourite. He was, moreover, just the man for the work which he had undertaken. and his death will be an irreparable loss to the king of the Belgians. The sad event happened in the course of a native war which, it seems, Mirambo, joined by Sambo and others, has commenced in the interior, and which is likely to prove a long and very troublesome one. Its object on Mirambo's part is to force all trade and caravans into his country, and to close all reads to the Lakes which do not trayerse his dominious. One story is that he was bound for Karema, saying that he must have that elephant, as he would not have people opening up the interior who did not pas through his country. The two natives who escaped and brought the ad tidings to Zanzibar give the following account of the occurrence:-It appears that on the avproach of the war party to the village where Carter and Cadenhead were, the natives all fled leaving the two Englishmen with 150 men armed with good guns. Mirambo himself was not present, but a day's journey off. Had he been there is judged improbable that he would have alowed white men, with whom he had no quarrel. to be killed. Carter went out to most the natives with his people and baggage, and while attempt. ing to talk to them and to explain that there was no cause for quarrel between them, a shot was fred, which unfortunately killed Cadenhead on the apot, whereupon the wretched 150 men threw down their arms and fiel, leaving Carter with only s handful of men, among them his old servant Mahomed, who had been with him for years in the ersian Gulf, and who had come to join him on this expedition, and one of Dr. Kirk's servants. who had volunteered to go with him-fine fellows both of them, and both fell by the side of their master. On seeing Cadenhead fall and the men bolt, Captain Carter, it would seem, judging that the case was desperate, took up his reposting rifle and exclaimed, "I had no quarrel with you, but now that you have killed my friend will avenge him." He fired, and killed 15. hen, seizing Cadenhead's rifle, he killed 15 more. The last that the two fugitives saw was Carter struck from behind. This is a very serious business, and makes the situation of the Belgians and especially of the missionaries now at Mirambo's very oritical. The Sultan is doing all he can, and is taking decisive steps to asserts his authority and to check these outrages on travellers. In two days' time Lieutenant Matthews starts with a large body of regular troops for Mpwapwa, where he is to form a military station, and this, it is to be hoped, will be the stepping-stone to further operations leading to his being able-to occupy and make safe for travellers those countries where they are now subject to outrage. This action of the Sultan by land, where the slave trade goes on to a certain extent, and that of the French Consul in trying to stop that which still goes on by sea under the French flag ought to prove severe blows to the remaining traffic; and if the Sultan succeeds in his efforts inland, and establisher his authority for the development of trade and the protection of travellers, as it is his firm intention to do, Carter and Cadenhead will not have lost their lives in vain. That is the only consolation to be derived from this miserable and untoward

DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNII AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Baily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been hoxes silk piece-goods, 20 bales pengees compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given. the accents being earduly marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size | Policies issued for long or short periods of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of current rates. space, achieving a clearness not previously [ A discount of 20 % allowed. attained, and dispensing with those vast margius terized Chinose publications. Toillustrate the vest scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :--Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested Coast Steam Navigation Company .- Tla, in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-

TENNYSON'S WIDE KNOWLEDGE. Tennyson's life has been governed by his fervent devotion to poetry; no knight of the chivalric ages was over so constant to his mistress. But he has been, to some extent, a poetic anchorite. His visions have been, too long and lonely, his intellectual activity too closely restricted to a single form of expression. What poet of equal renown in all history has been so solely a post as he? He a chance if he even hade a bell to ring; in has acquainted himself with all forms of knowledge-Thackeray once said to me, "Tennyson is the wisest man I know."-and for the sake of poetry; yet; even as the anchorite confounds his natural aspiration with the spiritual effort born of his solitary brooding, so may the post alloy his creative faculty by shutting himself alone with it. He may have written prose, but I do not know where fifty lines of it are to be found. Consequently his ideas and speculations on other subjects, which must crowd his mind uncomfortably at times, force their entrance into his verse; and, in spite of his artistic sense, not always with that peotic necessity which the reader instantly recognises. In "In Memorian" Lo bas justified himself with wonderful ability; with the exception The progress of our modern maidens, like of the single idvil of "Guinevere" and the Sumatra her cruel blade between my left arm and that of the bad apprentice, is downward from brief poem of "Tithonus," he has written Talee my side, and I fell to the ground as dead the first. Almost everything in Gray, for example, breathes of earlier sources, yet it were both flippant and absurd to assert that he deliberately selected his poetical imagery from his scholastic stores. Goethe held that whatever an author can use with a new significance, or invest with some additional charm, he has a right to take freely; and this right has long been exercised in the kindred
